you remember parking on Tara and Longford and walking a block to school in rain, sleet and snow...

you ever thought 20 minutes was just not enough time to eat lunch...

you recognize the words A, B or C Lunch, G-Hall and the Round...

you know what J.U.G. stands for...

you enjoyed plaid as daily part of your wardrobe for the better part of your teenage years...

you ever wondered why Senorita Kendall wore turtle-necks in 95 degree weather...

you ever wondered why Mr. Netzer could not manage to satisfy that itch below the belt...

"free lunch" meant you were allowed to make a mad dash to the Central and Rock Taco Tico...

you ever thought hanging out at QuikTrip was really cool...

you ever "dragged Douglas" on Friday night with your car stereo blasting Def Leopard's "Pour Some Sugar on Me"...

you thought you were cool because you listened to "hair bands" on cassette tape...

you were puzzled by the enthusiasm and zest for life Mr. Page always showed...

you hated the sound of car alarms every time a plane flew overhead...

you had mall bangs, kept hair spray in your purse, and knew how to use it...

you relaxed to the soothing tunes Mr. Knott played during class...

Southeast school was your rival...

you ever got detention from Mr. Carney and had to serve it before school with Mr. Miller...

you could recite the dialogue of any John Hughes movie and felt that teen angst...

you remember Ms. Abbott screaming "hit the deck," after hearing some fireworks go off in the hallway...

you were ever tardy to school, but didn't sweat it because you knew Mrs. Orth would give you a pass...

you ever got caught going the wrong way up or down the stairways...

names like Ms. Raglin, Sr. Johnellen, Mr. Barnhill intimidated you...

you are looking fine and feeling mighty....
